Their paths and their partnerships are unknowingly interwoven in a delicious piece of writing and staged. Speaking in languages is active from 6.9,10,11,12,13-8:00 and from 13:00 to 7 July. Courthouse Theatre, Ballarat, in association with Blue Raincoat Productions Pty Ltd and The Ballarat National Theatre (BNT.org.au) Justin Hayward's director Daniel West Dan worked with the Melbourne Writers theatre, screenplay, theatrical movement, Bloc Music Theatre, Moomba, Moomba , City of Ballarat, Acoustic Voice, Melbourne Fringe Festival, Hartwell Players, Ballarat Lyric Theatre and Ballarat National Theatre. The design set (by Dan West, Katrina Hill and Mathew Henderson) is not for realism. Who will survive? While the act closes, I express, with something inside me that tells me that the stories that are so enticing by these artists will only imply us in act two. This is where the public enters, I suppose. And it is a real language - the daily speech of closed doors and also to try, try, give a sense, make amends, do well to their past and present. A must. Previewing the SBW stables in the 1996 Griffin Theatre season, speaking in languages continued to win the Awgie* for the best play before being transformed into the award winning multi-winning film Multi AFI Lantana. And so time arises, the repercussions become more and more harmful for people who sometimes communicate so eloquently, only to destroy every reason and hope to tear apart with the next line that leaves the mouth. There are silent grays, different levels of surface and texture and a background that will have fun with color and drama as history requires it. While you sit down, it's nice to see that there's no kitchen table or fake sofa or a mini bar in sight. This is theatrical that talks about the jungle of desires and fears that we confuse always have the potential to project and try to protect ourselves and others from. This is not to say the play itself is some kind of trial to endure but rather it speaks of matters that could be so damn relatable that you find yourself having to absorb (accept?) the mad, sad poetry of it all. And the beauty of the language allows the characters to not be looked down upon as we sit above in judgement. The complexities of the heart are laid bare and it is wrenching in parts to say the least. His directing credits include Cosi, by Louis Nowra and A Midsummer Night's Dream, both for Damascus College. They are all exceptional from the get-go. Two couples set out to betray their partners, a lover returns from the past and a husband doesn't answer the phone. He graduated from the University of Western Australia with a Bachelor of Arts and then a Diploma in Dramatic Arts at the Victorian College of Arts, in Melbourne. Andrew Bovell's play Speaking in Tongues was first performed in August 1996 in a production by Griffin Theatre Company at The Stables, Sydney, Australia. It was later adapted by Bovell into the screenplay for the feature film Lantana (2001). The play was first performed in the UK at Hampstead Theatre, London, in June 2000, and was revived at the Duke of York's Theatre in the West End in September 2009. One pairing retreats, the other goes through with mutual seduction in a beautifully realised sequence of painfully tentative desire. As a musician Dan has played festivals and events, has appeared on several recordings and on stage with bands for the last 20 years. Review (part of) by Diana Simmonds ♦ÂÂ†Â†It begins with two couples ♦ÂÂ†Â† Leon and Sonja, Pete and Jane ♦ÂÂ†Â† who are out on the town one night but, because their marriages are at a point of critical midlife ennui, each is alone.
